ROCKY MOUNTAINEER

ROCKY MOUNTAINEER WILL LAUNCH A NEW TRAIN JOURNEY IN THE USA IN 2021

Rocky Mountaineer will introduce a new route to showcase the best scenery the Southwest United States has to offer. The Rockies to the Red Rocks route will be a two-day train journey between Denver, Colorado, and Moab, Utah, with an overnight stay in Glenwood Springs, Colorado. The train travels only during the day and features oversized windows, so guests do not miss a moment of the ever-changing landscapes.

THE EXPERIENCE

Guests will enjoy the complete Rocky Mountaineer experience, including onboard storytelling, premium cuisine, compelling scenery, and social atmosphere in a custom-designed glass-dome coach. Guests will take in the views through the train's oversized glass-dome windows, from the comfort of their spacious, reclining seats. The onboard culinary experience will feature cuisine and ingredients local to the Southwestern U.S., which will be complemented with beverage service, and served at the seats, so guests can enjoy the scenery as they dine.

THE ROUTE

The Rockies to the Red Rocks route will showcase scenic views that are unique to the Southwest United States, as it travels between Colorado and Utah. Between Denver and Glenwood Springs, guests will journey alongside the Colorado River and through a series of canyons with steep, rugged rock walls. The route between Glenwood Springs and Moab offers a variety of scenery, including mountain vistas, desert cliffs and rock formations. The Rockies to the Red Rocks route will be available to travel westbound or eastbound.

VACATION PACKAGES
